THE STAGE.

Cora Urquhart Potter is in Australia, and will remain there for a long time. She has a gold mine there, and thinks it better than touring four continents.

Vesta Victoria, who created "Daddy Wouldn't Buy Me a Bowwow," is now touring the English provinces with such success that it is not probable she will be seen in America for some time.

It is said that Richard Harding Davis has become a very persistent attendant at stage doors since he went to London, and it is suspected he is gathering material for a new story, or perhaps a play.

Stage folk in London are all talking about the fact that at the last drawing-room Miss Brinsley Sheridan, a descendant of the great dramatist, but nevertheless nobody but a hard-working actress, was presented to the queen. Ella Reed is said to be one of the prettiest of American actresses. She always dresses in the most costly fashion, and in the different parts she plays with the company to which she belongs she wears no less than 52 different gowns. Baggage men weep when she travels their way.

Nat Goodwin has gone to Boston to see his mother, whom he has not visited for many months. He is stouter than of yore, and says his superb health is due to the bicycle. Next season Mr. Goodwin will present Madeline Lucette Byley's comedy, "An American Citizen," which was well received in San Francisco.

Cleo de Merode, the Paris ballet girl who is one of the reigning beauties of the day, is coming to this country and is soon due in New York. She is a thorough business woman, in spite of her beauty, and has insisted that her salary, which is huge, shall be deposited in advance with her bankers.

LATE NOVELTIES.

To cool beer and other liquids the barrel or reservoir from which they are to be drawn is connected with a coil of pipes running into a chamber and around a cake of ice, with the faucet at the other end of the pipe.

A new fire escape for use in hotels and large buildings is formed of a large cushioned chair with a box in the seat under the cushion containing a rope ladder to be attached to the chair and hung out of the window.

A new medical inhaler for diseases of the head and throat passages is composed of a water-proof fabric, to be stretched over the mouth and nose, with an atomizer at one side to produce vapor from the medicine for the patient to breathe.

Monuments for cemeteries, etc., are soon to be made with slabs of glass or metal joined at the corners and braced with anchor rods across the center, the hollow space being filled in with cement or concrete; stained glass being used to vary the colors, or white glass with a colored substance between it and the cement.

Early Settlers from England Leave Their Traces to This Day.

The two leading types of southern population are plainly the Virginian and the South Carolinian of the tide-water. For this fact there are both historical and physiographic reasons. declares the Atlantic. Virginia was the first and South Carolina the second southern colony to be settled by well-to-do Englishmen who desired to found permanent homes. The introduction of slavery and its application to staple crops speedily gave an aristocratic tone to society in both provinces, but between them, in North Carolina, and to the south of them, in Georgia, there were fewer wealthy settlers and no staple crops to speak of, so that from the first society in these provinces was more or less democratic in spite of slavery. Before, however, the gentry of the coast could expand and occupy the country lying between the Blue Ridge and the Alleghenies and beyond the latter range of mountains a very different sort of people had moved in and taken possession. Among these people, owing to their habits and the nature of their soil, slavery could take no strong hold, hence they remained democratic and distinct from their tide-water neighbors, as, indeed, they are to this day.

The Frog Crop.

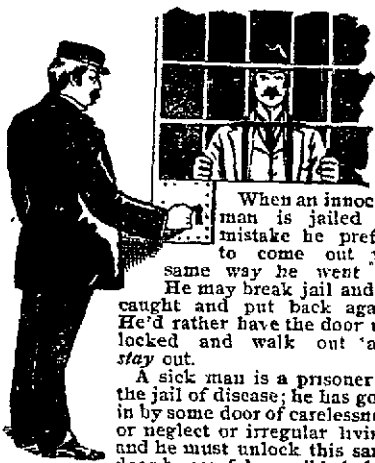

The frog crop at present is wholly wild, and the bulk of it is marketed in Philadelphia and New York. Missouri is the great frog producing state. The town of Kennett alone ships 60,000 pounds of dressed frog legs annually and New Madrid is second with 25,000 pounds. These figures are taken from the books of the railroads. The swamp lands of Missouri and Arkansas are the best frog growing areas in the world, the frogs found there being of the real bull species. They are caught in all sorts of ways, some with a hook and bit of red flannel, and others by spearing and shooting. The frog season begins about the middle of March and lasts three months. At night men go out in small boats which are provided with lamps and big reflectors. The light so blinds the frogs that the boat can paddle right up to them and they are readily speared. Exceptional specimens weigh as much as two pounds.—Philadelphia Press

THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE

Happy and Fruitful Marriage.

Every MAN who would know the GRAND TRUTHS, the Plain Facts, the Old Secrets and the New Discoveries of Medical Science as applied to Married Life, who would alone for pain, loss and avoid future pitfalls, should write for our wonderful little book, called "Complete Manhood and How to Attain It." To any earnest man we will mail one copy entirely free, in plain sealed cover.

ERIE MEDICAL CO., 64 MADARA ST.

When an innocent man is jailed by mistake he prefers to come out the same way he went in. He may break jail and be caught and put back again. He'd rather have the door unlocked and walk out and stay out.

A sick man is a prisoner in the jail of disease; he has gone in by some door of carelessness or neglect or irregular living, and he must unlock this same door by careful, sensible habits of the digestive organs or of the liver, which prevents the supply of nourishment to the system. The best remedy for these troubles is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, because it gives the digestive and blood-making organs power to assimilate food and transform it into pure, nourishing blood, vitalized with an abundance of red corpuscles.

It acts directly upon the liver and gives it capacity to filter all bilious impurities out of the circulation. It builds up solid, muscular flesh and healthy nerve force. In obstinate constipation the "Discovery" should be used in conjunction with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the most natural and thoroughly scientific laxative ever devised. The "Pellets" regulate and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One is a gentle laxative, two act as a mild cathartic.

My wife had suffered for seven years with dyspepsia, sick headache and constipation," writes Mr. Alonzo D. Jameson, of Dunbarton, Merrimack Co., N. H. "We tried many doctors and many kinds of medicine, but all were of no avail until we purchased six bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which together with the 'Pleasant Pellets' has entirely restored my wife's health, and we cannot say enough in thanks to you for these valuable medicines."

The University will open Wednesday, September 1, 1897, well equipped in all departments. The School of Civil Engineering will be open to students for the first time. The completion and equipment of the new Mechanical Building provide adequate facilities for instruction and training in the Mechanical Arts.

Through the kindness of Mrs. J. O. Stubbs of San Francisco, the University is able to offer an entrance scholarship of one hundred dollars to the candidate who passes the best entrance examination for the Freshman Class or the Third Year Normal. It is probable that a second entrance scholarship of one hundred dollars will be awarded. Candidates for these entrance scholarships should present themselves at the President's office at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, August 31st.

EXAMINATION SUBJECTS.

Candidates for the entrance scholarships will be examined in the following subjects:—One year's work in Latin, Algebra to quadratics, history of the United States, history of England, elements of rhetoric, five books of geometry, arithmetic, including the metric system, spelling, reading, penmanship, English grammar and geography; thorough preparation in the common English branches will be asked for.

All other entrance examinations will be the same as heretofore, but greater thoroughness in the elementary branches will be insisted upon.

The requirement of French for admission to the Science Schools will be waived for a time because it is not possible for many students preparing for the University to obtain instruction in the French language.

ANNUAL SCHOLARSHIPS.

The Regents and the Faculty take pleasure in announcing the following scholarships to be awarded on Commencement Day, June, 1898, to the several students who have maintained the highest standing in their several classes for scholarship and character as follows:

1. The Alumni Scholarship offered by the University Alumni Association and open to members of the Freshman Class of the University. The scholarship will amount to about $60.

2. The Normal Alumnae Scholarship offered by the Alumnae Association of the State Normal School and open to members of the first, second and third years in the State Normal School. This scholarship amounts to $50.

3. The Maxson Scholarship offered by Col. H. B. Maxson of Reno, is open to members of the Sophomore Class. This scholarship amounts to $50.

4. The "No Name" Scholarship offered by a friend of the University and open to the Junior Class. This scholarship amounts to $50.

5. The McDowell Scholarship offered by Prof. R. H. McDowell of the University and open to members of the Freshman Class with the best class record for the year. This scholarship is restricted to members of the Freshman Class whose homes are in either Esmeralda, Lincoln, Nye or White Pine counties. This scholarship is for $50.

6. A Prize Scholarship of $25 for the best recitation or declamation. Open to members of the Freshman Class both in the University and State Normal School.

7. A Forensic Scholarship of $50 for the best oration and open to members of the Junior and Senior classes. The subject and conditions of this scholarship will be announced by the Faculty.

A QUIET WEDDING.

Two Young People of Reno Embark on the Matrimonial Sea.

A quiet wedding occurred on last Saturday evening, in the presence of a few intimate friends of the principals, Judge J. J. Linn officiating.

The contracting parties were Mr. John Eyraud, the well known laundryman, and Miss Lizzie Himelberger, for a long time a resident of Reno and well known.

After the ceremony, the young couple received the congratulations of their friends and an enjoyable evening was spent by all present. Mr. Eyraud had already prepared a home for his bride, where they immediately repaired and settled down to housekeeping in good old fashioned style, without ostentation or the customary display usual on such occasions.

The Journal extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Eyraud and wishes them much happiness and prosperity in the life's partnership they have formed.

Court Martial Postponed.

The Court Martial which convened last evening to try Lieutenant Morgan for insubordination postponed the trial to August 31st. Major Huffaker appeared at the Court Martial last evening as the legal representative of the defendant. Judge Advocate Lord objected to his acting in that capacity, and the Court, after deliberation, sustained the objection. The objection was based on the ground that Major Huffaker had acted in a way to cast contempt upon the Court Martial. The adjournment was taken to enable the defendant to obtain other counsel. It is said that other civil proceedings will be taken by Morgan.—Chronicle.

The trial of George E. Plyer and M. Schoedde, the two men charged with mayhem on the person of Charles Harris at Santa Cruz some time ago, began in that city yesterday.

Switzerland's Pride.

What a Chinaman Thought of a Toboggan Slide.

"Whiz! walkee back three miles." Such was the animated description given by an almond-eyed celestial of his first ride on a toboggan slide. What the simple-minded heathen would say should he take a trip down the grade of the prospective tunnel railway, which is now being constructed in the Alps Mountains, is beyond comprehension. It is intended, and the intention is being carried out, to conquer, with the iron horse, the heights of the Jungfrau, a peak 16,000 feet above sea level and one of the highest and most inaccessible points of the Alpine Mountains. Heretofore only the most experienced and hardy mountaineers have attempted the trip to the summit of the mountain, but when the contemplated road is in operation, the frailest invalid may accomplish the feat with the most consummate ease and impunity. The road is to run along the steep mountain side for three miles and then plunging into the heart of the mountain, circle upward through a tunnel to a terminal station 270 feet below the summit and hallowed out of the mountain's core. The grade of this tunnel is a continuous incline of four miles with the enormous grade of twenty-five feet in the hundred. From the terminal station an elevator running through solid adamantine granite carries the tourist to the top of one of the grandest mountains in the world. The road is to be run and lighted by electricity and it is estimated that its seven and one-half miles of track will cost over a million of dollars. When the road is completed it will be a monument to the inventor's genius and the cynosure of the mechanical world.

The Viatic Work.

In no way can we do more good than in restoring the sick to health. This Viatic will do, if intelligently used.

Have you stomach trouble? Use our Tabloids.

Have you piles? Use our Sano.

Have you catarrh? Use our Catarrh Remedy.

Are you weak and all run down? Use Viatic.

Come and see me and I will fully explain the use of all of our remedies.

Hay Prices Going Up.

Owing to a light hay crop in California, the price of hay has advanced wonderfully in the last couple of weeks. The price last Saturday at San Francisco ranged from $11 50 to $16 per ton and a marked tendency to reach $20. Livestock men have advanced the boarding of horses and they are watching for opportunities to lay in their winter supply of feed. The consumption of hay in California for a season is estimated at 150,000 tons.

Justice Field of the United States Supreme Court has broken the record for the longest service in that national tribunal. On the 16th inst. he had served continuously thirty-four years, five months and six days, exceeding by one day the service of Justice Marshall. It is understood that it has been the intention of Justice Field to retire from the bench when he had served longer than Justice Marshall.

For Over Fifty Years.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for their children when teething. It is a safe and reliable remedy and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, it cures Diarrhoea, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation and gives Tone and Energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Price 25 cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists throughout the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup."

C. Novacovich will handle the Kane Brothers' of Coloma, Cal., celebrated fresh fruits. Ladies who contemplate putting up fruit for the winter will do well to call and order their supply.

When the road is completed it will be a monument to the inventor's genius and the cynosure of the mechanical world.

The operation was repeated with about the same success. The notable features of the performance were recalcitrant cattle dashing across sandbars far away, with the plains and far blue hills beyond; powerful and robust Mexicans—some of them entirely naked—riding back and forth with yells that would have been the fortune of a baseball coach; swift and tireless swimmers gliding back and forth, some of them completely surrounded by misbehaving cattle, and hundreds of horns drifting about, seeming without aim, above the surface of the water. It seemed almost impossible to head the great herd in the right direction. Some could be made to go across, but that was obviously what the great majority did not want to do.

By about five o'clock in the afternoon something like 1,500 had been lured on the Texas side. They stood quietly enough when they were over and gave but little trouble to the herders. But those not yet across were naturally the least willing to cross, and all that a cow may do that is obstinate was done on this occasion. They appeared to have a great deal more endurance than the horses. They would reach the bank for the hundredth time and race with the spirit of a young fawn just released from a barn. The Mexicans began to rope and throw some of the most mischievous of the evil doers, that they might not lead the others astray, and after falling hard enough to break a limb they would get up, ready for another mad dash. The herders rivaled them in endurance.

One deep-chested fellow was thrown from his horse just as the latter was scrambling out of the water on a slippery bank—the animal stumbling. He rolled over and over, and then jumped up and started in pursuit of his frightened steed. The race was about equal, but another horseman came to the rescue and caught a bright rein of the runaway. One slip of a boy followed a steer that had got away in the water by himself, and by swimming always in the right place and yelling in just the proper manner he succeeded in driving the big fellow across. A great cheer went up from the bridge, and was faintly echoed by the people along the Mexican side.

Late in the day the cattle that had crossed and which had been standing below the bridge were driven to a point opposite the ford, that the still recalcitrant beasts in Mexico, on seeing them, might be encouraged to come over. As the great mass passed under the bridge it presented a strange sight to the crowd of people above. Looking down it seemed like a great multi-colored serpent gliding along. The effect was indescribable. Opposite the ford they began moving around in a great circle, like the eddy in a mighty stream. They were becoming restless and a guard was placed about them to prevent their returning to their native land. It was not until close to six o'clock that the last stragglers were brought over, and it was necessary then to bring them over the bridge. There were perhaps half a hundred of these—Eagle Pass (Tex.) Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A speck of gold weighing the millionth part of a grain may be easily seen by the naked eye.—Chicago Chronicle.

The steamer North Fork sailed for St. Michaels yesterday afternoon from San Francisco. She carried eighty-three passengers. The City of Kingston sailed from Tacoma yesterday for Dyes, with sixty-nine passengers, and the list will be increased to 200 at Seattle.

Two Thousand Cattle from Mexico to the United States.

Something near 2,000 cattle crossed the Rio Grande at Eagle Pass lately. They were from a ranch in Coahuila and were to be delivered to one of the most prominent ranchmen in the south-west. At this time and place the Rio Grande is a pretty fair sized stream. It is nearly a quarter of a mile wide. At the fording place there is just enough water to swim a cow in the deepest place. It was not supposed, however, and it certainly was not the case, that the cattle would remain in the fording place. As it turned out, they occupied and performed countless maneuvers over about a mile.

The labor of the day began about the middle of the forenoon. The great herd of lowing quadrupeds were driven down at the foot of the old Mexican town across the river and on the long bar that faces the stream. There was an army of Mexicans on every side to keep them in place. A dozen bestride blank horses; the remainder was afoot. There was an abundance of little brown boys, each with two trail garments and as many powerful lugs. The cattle were driven along the bar up under the bridge and to a point above the two towns to the fording place. And here the leaders were headed out into the stream. They took to the water with apparent willingness, and lashed their tails and proceeded with a great splash and sound as the 8,000 feet began to smite the water. When they were about half submerged the leaders turned a little to the right-down stream. As if by previous arrangement the whole right flank turned in the same direction, and the multitude separated and became many little groups. The horsemen dashed in below them with Indian yells. A dozen men were suddenly naked, and they were swimming rapidly out toward the heads of the leaders, with the intention of turning them. Some of them carried clubs in their hands as they swam, and when they came up their faces. Some were turned in the right direction; many hundreds, less roughly urged, waded aimlessly down stream; others turned toward the bank and raced with the speed of the wind in the open country—dogs, horses and pedestrians in pursuit. The great herd of animals in the middle of the stream found deep water and swam. Little more than their heads was visible, and a thousand horns, suggestive of brush in flood time, caught the sunlight. They floated without apparent effort with the current, with none to control them, and when they sought the bank it was on the side of the river from that which they had started and at about the same point. The group that had been made to cross to the Texas side stood passively together at the edge of the water, with their heads stretched out before them.

The operation was repeated with about the same success. The notable features of the performance were recalcitrant cattle dashing across sandbars far away, with the plains and far blue hills beyond; powerful and robust Mexicans—some of them entirely naked—riding back and forth with yells that would have been the fortune of a baseball coach; swift and tireless swimmers gliding back and forth, some of them completely surrounded by misbehaving cattle, and hundreds of horns drifting about, seeming without aim, above the surface of the water. It seemed almost impossible to head the great herd in the right direction. Some could be made to go across, but that was obviously what the great majority did not want to do.

By about five o'clock in the afternoon something like 1,500 had been lured on the Texas side. They stood quietly enough when they were over and gave but little trouble to the herders. But those not yet across were naturally the least willing to cross, and all that a cow may do that is obstinate was done on this occasion. They appeared to have a great deal more endurance than the horses. They would reach the bank for the hundredth time and race with the spirit of a young fawn just released from a barn. The Mexicans began to rope and throw some of the most mischievous of the evil doers, that they might not lead the others astray, and after falling hard enough to break a limb they would get up, ready for another mad dash. The herders rivaled them in endurance.

One deep-chested fellow was thrown from his horse just as the latter was scrambling out of the water on a slippery bank—the animal stumbling. He rolled over and over, and then jumped up and started in pursuit of his frightened steed. The race was about equal, but another horseman came to the rescue and caught a bright rein of the runaway. One slip of a boy followed a steer that had got away in the water by himself, and by swimming always in the right place and yelling in just the proper manner he succeeded in driving the big fellow across. A great cheer went up from the bridge, and was faintly echoed by the people along the Mexican side.

Late in the day the cattle that had crossed and which had been standing below the bridge were driven to a point opposite the ford, that the still recalcitrant beasts in Mexico, on seeing them, might be encouraged to come over. As the great mass passed under the bridge it presented a strange sight to the crowd of people above. Looking down it seemed like a great multi-colored serpent gliding along. The effect was indescribable. Opposite the ford they began moving around in a great circle, like the eddy in a mighty stream. They were becoming restless and a guard was placed about them to prevent their returning to their native land. It was not until close to six o'clock that the last stragglers were brought over, and it was necessary then to bring them over the bridge. There were perhaps half a hundred of these—Eagle Pass (Tex.) It Does Sound Fishy.
A man who resides on the East side relates an incident which may be true, but it sounds fishy. His boy caught a large sucker a couple of years ago, and since that time he has been experimenting with his fluky pet somewhat. The fish, says the Punksawney Spirit, has been kept out of the water so much that it generally became accustomed to it, and frequently hopped out of the water itself and followed the boy around.
Finally the boy placed it in a pen and gradually reduced its bathing periods until it became acclimatized, abandoning entirely its native element. It would follow the boy around like a dog,
and one day he started over to town across the swinging bridge with the pet fish flopping along after him. But alas for boyish hopes! The fish made a slight misstep and flopped overboard into the creek and drowned before the boy could rescue him.

Russian Criminals.
One of the most curious results of the investigations made by doctors in the Russian jails is the statement that each group of criminals has its own peculiar color of the eye. A legal journal at Odessa states that it has been found that thieves and murderers usually possess "chestnut brown" eyes. Robbers —that is to say, thieves in a large and violent line of business—have slate-colored eyes, and the same is stated of criminally convicted of swindling. The vagabond classes have eyes of azure blue tint. The color most observed among rainer criminals and those convicted of slight offenses is "chestnut brown green."

RIVER STEAMBOATS.
Western American Specimens Well
Adapted for Their Purpose.
While the western American river steamer may be improved in some minor points, it is, in general design and construction, admirably fitted for the peculiar work that it has to do. Considered from a strictly engineering standpoint, it is a creditable structure. Furthermore, it is a striking example of the survival of the fittest.
In comparing the advances which have been made in the ocean and American lake marine with those on the western rivers, the latter have generally been made to appear in an unfavorable light. The fact, however, has been overlooked in most cases that the conditions of service are radically different and these difficulties necessitate—in fact, compel—corresponding differences in the character of the steamers. The boilers and engines of the magnificent ocean liners would be as much out of place and would fare as disastrously on the western river steamer as would the machinery of the latter if transferred to ocean service. Machinery essentially similar to that employed on the American lakes has been tried many times on western rivers. Large sums of money have been spent on experiments and the result has always been a failure. Even the vertical engine has been abandoned. Barring unimportant details, the machinery of the western river steamer is preeminently "the right thing in the right place."
It is not uncommon for the boats to run aground, and it is still more common for the cargo on board to be badly distributed. Either of these conditions will cause an immediate distortion of the entire steamer, and the machinery is thrown out of line. The peculiar type of engines employed stands the severe service without injury or derangement.
The accepted type of machinery is so simple and reliable that it can be handled satisfactorily by a small number of men, and these need not necessarily be highly skilled nor of long experience.
This is of some importance in view of the fact that the months of idleness render it difficult to retain the best men and that it is always necessary to keep the salary account down. Experiment has demonstrated that the saving in fuel due to improved machinery does not, as a rule, compensate for the drawbacks accompanying its use, such as increased weight, space occupied, greater first cost and less reliability—

A Reliable Method.
"Bliggins' wife doesn't insist on retaining possession of the latch-key any more," suggested Mr. Meekton.
"No," replied Mrs. Meekton, "she has found a better way to make sure that her husband stays home after dark."
"What is it?"
"She has taken the lamp off his bicycle."—Washington Star.
